

Acknowledgements

The Collingwood History Committee who were involved in the interviewing and preparation of the book included Mary Bowen, Pam Caddell, John Curtain, Peg Hoggett, Vivienne McCutcheon, Barbara Mills and Janet Taylor.

Their thanks are due to the residents who were interviewed; The Collingwood Council for their moral and financial support throughout the project; Miss Mary Demaine of Canterbury for permission to use the memoirs of her mother, Mildred Snowden; The Sun News Pictorial for permission to use the material by Lou Richards and the reproduction on page 50; Angus and Robertson for permission to use the material from Georgiana's Journal; Ms Jenny Carew, picture librarian, State Library of Victoria, for her assistance in photo research; The Carringbush Regional Library for photographs from the History Collection, Collingwood Library; and to the following for the loan of personal photographs in their possession — Myrtle Bayne, Mary Bowen, Grace Hocking, Peg Hoggett, Ellen Johnston, Frank Kyne, Tom Mayberry, Reg Smith, Janet Taylor, Mr & Mrs Arthur Towers, Isabel Webb and Maggie Weir.

In thanking the residents interviewed, the Committee is aware that they are only a small number of those who have lived in Collingwood who retain vivid memories of 'Those Days'. The Committee would like to continue recording Collingwood memories, and invite others who remember Collingwood to add to the tape recordings, photographs and other material being gathered for the History Collection of the Collingwood Library. If you can help in this way, please leave your name and address with the Collingwood Library so that you can be contacted by a member of the History Committee.

In Those Days is the story of an industrial suburb, on the fringe of the City of Melbourne, told by people who have lived there most of their lives. Nearly all were born before The Great War, many are in their seventies and eighties.

Their recollections, transcribed from taped interviews, are of the ordinary fabric of life in Collingwood; memories of work and play, of shopping and family life, of local faces and places, as well as of the Wars and the Depression.

It tells of an Australian city over the last seventy years as people who lived there remember what it was like In Those Days.

SMITH STREET, COLLINGWOOD, 1903.
